Dear beloved members of the St. Joseph's College community,

It gives me immense pleasure to extend my warmest wishes to all the readers on the occasion of the release of the College Union Magazine. This publication is not merely a collection of words and letters; it is an expression of the creative talents and intellectual abilities of the student community. The vibrant college magazine, reflecting the laughter, thoughts, and dreams of college life, is now reaching your hands.

Education is not confined to the four walls of a classroom. It must be reflected in the intellectual growth, creativity, talents, and social commitment of students. Established in 1981, St. Joseph's College Moolamattom strives to foster the creativity, growth, and capabilities of its students. Through their writing, artistic activities, and literary talents, students continue to showcase their abilities. May their thoughts grow in ways that benefit society and the nation. As your creations find a place in the pages of this magazine, may it become a lasting reflection of your talents and achievements.

I extend my heartfelt wishes for success in all their creative endeavors and efforts. May this magazine become a new platform for your dreams and thoughts.

Heartfelt wishes to everyone.

It is with immense pleasure that I extend my greetings on the release of our college magazine ‘Yugam’. A magazine is far more than a collection of articles and images; it is a vibrant reflection of the thoughts, creativity, aspirations, and achievements of our student community. It stands as a lasting record of the spirit of campus life and the voices that shape it.

I had the privilege of taking over the responsibility of Student Union Advisor during the final quarter of the academic year, succeeding Rev. Dr. Fr. Jomon Kottarathil, whose guidance and commitment laid a strong foundation for the Union’s activities. Stepping into this role, though for a brief period, has been a deeply enriching and insightful experience. It has been a pleasure to work alongside our student leaders, witnessing their enthusiasm and dedication.

I must explicitly commend the Student Union for their incredible work this year. They have been the driving force behind a fantastic lineup of programs, managing everything with great energy and efficiency. Beyond organizing successful events, the Union has been a strong pillar of support for both academic and extracurricular life on campus. I offer my heartiest congratulations to the entire team for their dedication, teamwork, and hard work in making this year truly memorable.

This magazine is a testament to that collective effort. It beautifully reflects the continuity of commitment and teamwork that define our institution. I extend my heartfelt congratulations to the Principal, the Magazine editor Mohammed Yaz R, the editorial board, the Student Union, and everyone who has contributed to making this publication a reality. May these pages inspire every reader to think deeply, dream boldly, and continue contributing to the vibrant intellectual and creative life of our college.

Every publication of art and literature is a true reflection of its time. Through a careful examination of artistic and literary creations, one can analyze the ways of thinking, attitudes, scientific and technological advancements, intellectual brilliance, and social lifestyles of each era. The youth are not only the promises of the future but also the architects who shape the future of every society. Their perspectives today will determine whether society rises to greater heights or declines tomorrow.

In this context, each of their artistic and literary endeavours becomes a gateway to a brighter future and a guiding signpost towards the creation of tomorrow's society. Through the magazine 'YUGAM', beautifully crafted under the leadership of our college students union, may the vibrant colours that unfold through stories, poems, drawings, articles, efforts towards social development, personality development, and excellence in academic and extracurricular activities ignite the sparks of patriotism within all of us.

Let us also proudly echo the immortal words associated with the great poet Mahakavi Ulloor S. Parameswara Iyer:

«“When we hear the name Kerala, our blood should surge through our veins.”»

Christmas Bike Rally – December 2025

To celebrate the spirit of Christmas and promote unity among students, the union organized a colourful Christmas Bike Rally. OUR JOURNEY

WE NEVER KNEW WHERE THE ROAD WOULD LEAD.

WE ONLY KNEW THERE WAS ANOTHER STEP TO TAKE.

THROUGH UNFAMILIAR TURNS, UNFINISHED DREAMS, LAUGHTER AND LESSONS

WE SLOWLY BECAME MORE THAN WHO WE WERE.

THE DESTINATION WAS NEVER THE STORY.

THE FOOTSTEPS WERE.

THE PEOPLE WE MET WERE.

THE MOMENTS WE MADE WERE.

AND NOW, AS WE LOOK BACK,

WE REALISE—

WE WERE NEVER SIMPLY PASSING THROUGH THESE YEARS.

THESE YEARS WERE PASSING THROUGH US.

THIS WAS OUR ROAD.

THIS WAS OUR STORY.

THIS WAS OUR YUGAM

When Corridors Became Memories

The corridor was never the same again for Saanvi. "It's just a corridor," you might say. But it wasn't. For her, it was a place she had never expected to be gifted with such soulful memories. Those were not just glances. They were exchanges of words she could never bring herself to say.

Saanvi started noticing Ishaan, a fellow third-year student, during the middle of the fifth semester. She had seen him before, but who would have thought that an acquaintance would become someone she would never forget?

They met, shared glances accompanied by genuine smiles, and it went on like that for weeks.

"Eye contact isn't possible with just one pair of eyes," she thought. Why was this happening? Why did he look at her whenever possible, even when he was busy with his friends? He could have simply ignored her. Yet he never forgot to look at her and offer that pleasant smile every time they crossed paths. He would even look back if he had passed their usual, unnamed glance-exchanging spot in the corridor, making sure he caught her eye and smiled.

Anyone meeting her for the first time would have thought she was angry with them. Her resting face had always been like that.

"Let them think so," she thought.

Perhaps he, too, had thought she was angry at him because of his reply. His dislike, his avoidance, and even his ego had somehow found a place among her favourite memories.

She was aware of her emotions. She understood the psychology behind them all. Yet she chose to hold on to them.

All that remained were memories—and the countless imaginations she had woven within her heart.

Some college memories are like that. Many of us can relate to moments like these. When we look back, we often realize that they are among the most precious memories we carry with us. Years later, they take us back to those days, bringing warmth to our minds and souls.

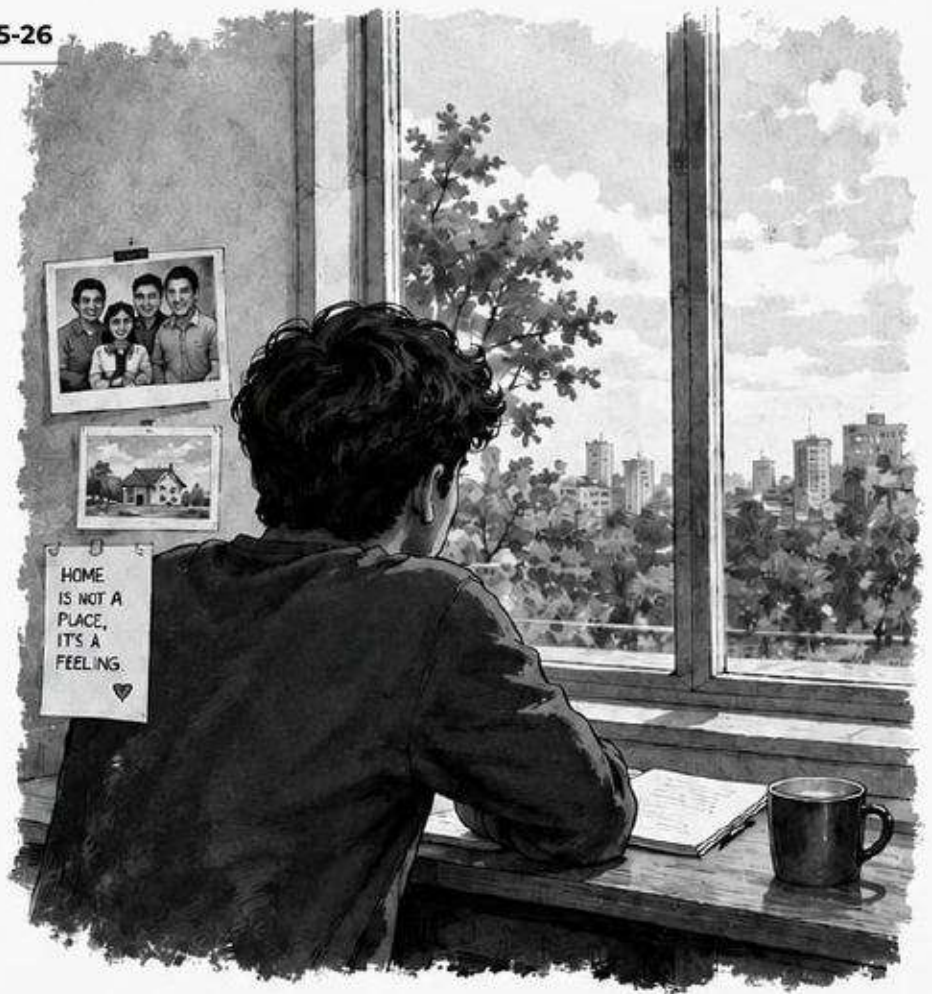

Sometimes, all that remains of a chapter in our lives is a corridor, a few smiles, a handful of glances, and a person we never truly had—but never quite forgot.

Being Away — from — Home

Being away from home is an experience that many people go through for studies, work, or other opportunities. Home is a place of comfort, love, and security, so leaving it is very difficult.

I often feel lonely and homesick because I miss my family, especially my loving mom and her handmade food. Everyday activities like playing with my siblings and friends, and every evening talk at my grandparents' house, have now become special memories.

However, living away from home also brings many benefits. It teaches people to be independent and responsible.

Being in a new environment also provides opportunities to meet different people, learn about new cultures, and develop valuable life skills and lessons.

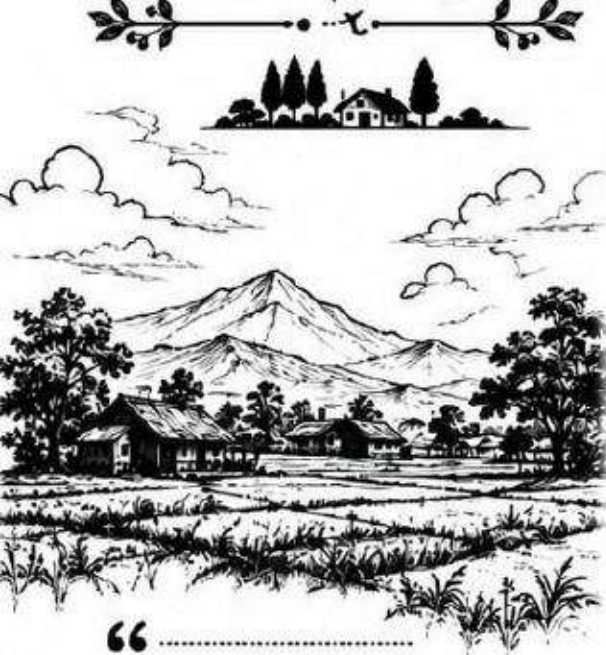

Although being away from home can be challenging, it helps individuals grow emotionally and mentally. The experience builds maturity.

“ In the end, while home always remains close to the heart, I hope living away from it will truly be worthwhile by leading me to success.

My Village

Though my village
may seem small,
To me it is the best of all.

Every village has its own identity and charm.
My village is a peaceful place,
Filled with beauty, love, and grace.

Here I live with my family dear,
My mother, father, and little brother near.
Surrounded by forests, green and wide,
Nature blooms on every side.

Birds and animals greet the dawn,
Their gentle songs carry us on.
There is no network in our land,
Yet hearts stay closely hand in hand.

Each evening people gather near,
To share their thoughts and spread good cheer.
The elders sit beneath the trees,
Telling stories with gentle ease.
Their words are treasures, rich and wise,
Like shining stars in evening skies.

Sometimes life is hard to bear;
In emergencies, help is rare.
Many struggles go unseen,
Though our days are calm and green.

Still, our village gives us more
Than wealth could ever hold in store.
Fresh air fills each grateful breath,
A gift more precious than worldly success.

Golden paddy fields softly sway,
Where hardworking people toil each day.
We grow our fruits and vegetables too,
Living simply, honest and true.

Every evening, hand in hand,
My father walks me through our land.
My mother cooks with love and care,
And joy is always waiting there.

Though my village may seem small,
To me it is the best of all.
It is my home, my pride, my song—
The place where my heart will always belong.

Seven Promises to Keep

1 To love.

Ever if we end up,
Suffering in the storms of separation.
Ever if we end up,
Fearing to depart from this heart.
Let's make seven promises to keep..
Endlessly, let me be drowning,
In search of you.
For your existence,
Is all the love I crave.

.....

2 To learn.

Life has to move on,
And the crossroads are crowded.
For we need a path,
Of us two, alone.

.....

3 To remember.

Of the merry and melancholy,
We shared, we cared, we trusted.
And let it be eternal,
Forever to remember.

.....

4 To forgive.

For sins that harmed you,
For things that prick you.
Had it been to vanish
From your life,
Remember to forgive,
For not staying.

5 To let go.

Is this "I" good for "you"?
Still lingers the thought.
Shall I wait a little longer?
Or, shall I?
Let you go?
If time says so...

.....

6 To return.

Had it been years,
That I longed.
To be held and claimed,
Let it be so, so the trust.
For I know,
You shall return,
Return to never let go...

7 The seven promises to keep,

When we part out
from this whole.

WHERE EYES SPOKE

In a world full of chaos,
they met in silence.
They spoke no words,
but their eyes did.

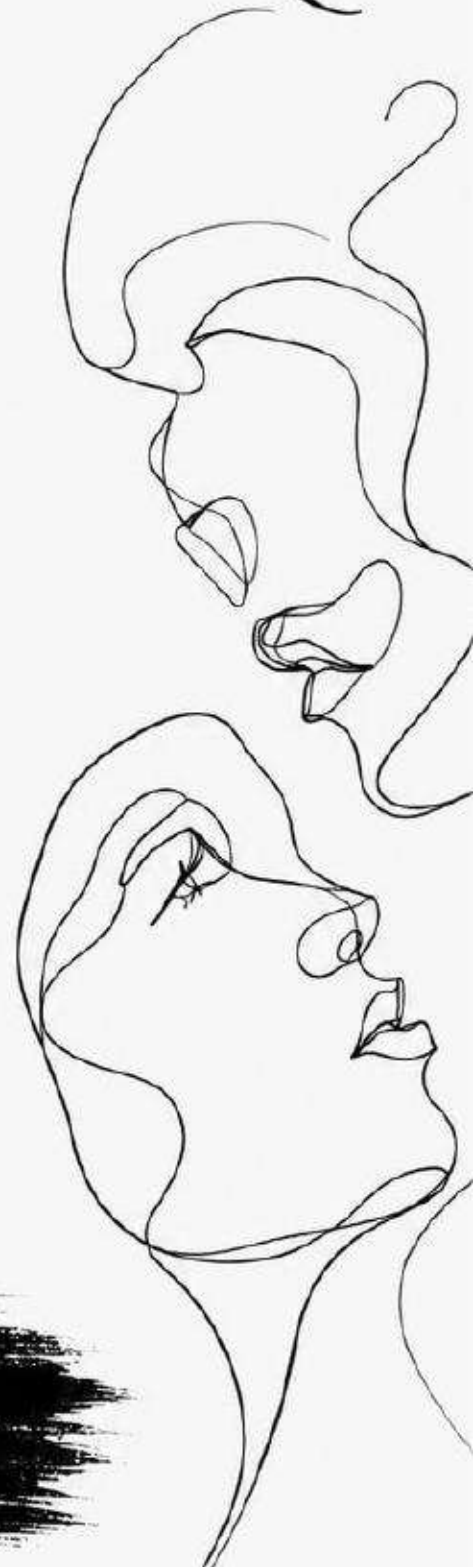

Glances never made
their hearts feel uneasy.
This feeling—
does it even hold a name?

There's belief in both—
if they're meant to be,
they would be.

They didn't rush;
they waited—
two souls resting in faith.

OUR VOICES

WE SPOKE NOT BECAUSE WE HAD ALL THE ANSWERS,
BUT BECAUSE WE DARED TO ASK THE QUESTIONS.
WE LAUGHED AT THE LITTLE THINGS,
ARGUED OVER THE THINGS THAT MATTERED,
DREAMED BEYOND WHAT WAS EXPECTED,
AND SOMETIMES CHOSE SILENCE WHEN WORDS FELL SHORT.
OUR VOICES WERE NEVER MEANT TO SOUND THE SAME.

Hey Soldier Boy!

Hey soldier boy,
don't give up yet.
Let's give it one more chance.
Let's build it from scratch.

Don't surrender now—
let death earn you.
Hey soldier boy,
let's fight one more time.

There is still something left in you.
So just fight one more time;
let this pain burn your soul.

This time,
you have nothing to lose.

Hey soldier boy,
don't give up yet.

“ A true soldier is not measured by how many times he wins,
but by how many times he refuses to quit. ”

Death by Curse

Lost my Hope,
Lost my dream,
Lost my sleep,
Lost my strength, all due to love.

A deadly curse can be cured,
But not when cursed with Love,
Even Death can't cure it.

I had big hopes until I hoped for her.
I had great dreams until I dreamed about her.

I loved too hard, and that is hard to get,
It became hard to live and hard to forget.

She took away my peace,
I lost my strength.

Let Death take me;
let this be my goodbye,
At least let the pain end.

IN THE Quiet BETWEEN US

LOVE NEVER ASKED FOR PERFECT WORDS,
IT LIVED INSTEAD IN SILENT SKIES,
IN STOLEN GLANCES, SHARED SMILES,
AND DREAMS REFLECTED IN OUR EYES.

YOU BECAME THE CALM IN EVERY STORM,
THE WARMTH IN EVERY WINTER'S BREEZE,
A MELODY MY HEART REMEMBERED
EVEN BEFORE IT LEARNED YOUR NAME.

IF TIME SHOULD SCATTER US LIKE LEAVES,
ACROSS THE ROADS WE'RE MEANT TO ROAM,
I'LL STILL BELIEVE THAT EVERY HEARTBEAT
KNOWS THE WAY TO BRING US HOME.

THEY BLOOM WITH EVERY PASSING DAY,
AND OURS, BENEATH THE ENDLESS STARS,
WILL ALWAYS FIND ITS GENTLE WAY.

OUR GENERATION

WE WERE BORN INTO A WORLD
THAT WAS CHANGING FASTER THAN WE COULD UNDERSTAND.
WE GREW UP BETWEEN SCREENS AND STORIES,
BETWEEN TRADITION AND TOMORROW,
BETWEEN WANTING TO BELONG
AND WANTING TO STAND APART.
WE QUESTIONED WHAT WE INHERITED,
REIMAGINED WHAT WE WERE GIVEN,
AND DARED TO DREAM BEYOND WHAT WAS EXPECTED.
WE MAY NOT HAVE CHANGED THE WORLD YET—
BUT WE ARE THE ONES WHO WILL INHERIT IT.

DIFFERENT MINDS.
DIFFERENT DREAMS.
DIFFERENT VOICES.
ONE GENERATION.

AND PERHAPS, YEARS FROM NOW,
THEY WON'T REMEMBER WHAT WE STUDIED,
WHAT WE WORE, OR HOW WE LOOKED.
THEY WILL REMEMBER WHAT WE DARED TO BECOME.

THIS IS OUR TIME.
THIS IS OUR GENERATION.

The Clock Never Waits

A POEM ON TIME AND LIFE

The clock moves on with silent grace,
Never pausing, never losing pace.
Each passing second writes its tale,
A gentle wind that fills our sail.

Morning arrives with dreams untold,
Inviting hearts to rise so bold.
But idle hands that choose delay
Watch golden moments slip away.

Time asks for neither wealth nor fame,
It treats each soul exactly the same.
The richest gift we truly own
Is every hour we've ever known.

The hands keep turning, day and night,
Carrying shadows into light.
They never question, never rest,
Yet teach us all to give our best.

A seed must grow before it flowers,
It cannot bloom by counting hours.
Success belongs to those who try,
Not those who simply watch time fly.

“Time is the most valuable thing a man can spend.”
— Theophrastus

VALUE TIME
Use every moment wisely.

STAY FOCUSED
Discipline today leads to success tomorrow.

KEEP MOVING
The clock never stops,
neither should you.

The past is ink that cannot fade,
The future waits to still be made.
Today alone is ours to hold,
More precious far than silver or gold.

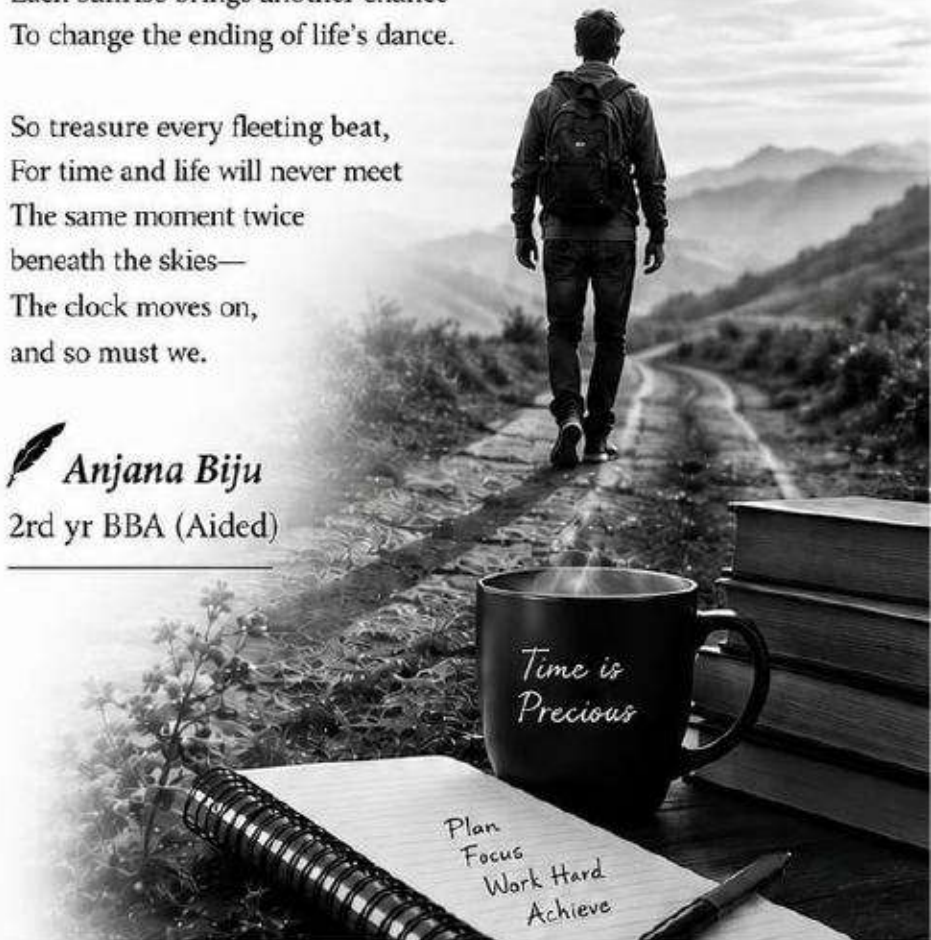

When failure knocks upon your door,
Let time reveal there's always more.
Each sunrise brings another chance
To change the ending of life's dance.

So treasure every fleeting beat,
For time and life will never meet
The same moment twice
beneath the skies—
The clock moves on,
and so must we.

Cybercrime

in the

Digital Age

Cybercrime refers to criminal activities carried out using computers, smartphones, or the internet. These crimes include hacking, identity theft, online scams, phishing attacks, cyberbullying, and the spread of malicious software.

One of my known persons, my uncle, has been attacked by scammers. The first thing they did was send him a WhatsApp message asking him to click a link for the benefit of a government scheme. Unfortunately, after clicking the link, his phone started working abnormally.

After a couple of weeks, he received a message that ₹95,000 had been debited from his bank account.

In conclusion, while digital technology offers countless opportunities, it also presents significant security challenges. Staying safe online requires awareness, caution, and responsible digital behavior. In the digital age, cybersecurity is not only a technical issue but also a personal responsibility that affects everyone who uses the internet.

The internet has transformed the way we communicate, learn, work, and conduct financial transactions. From social media platforms to online banking and digital payments, technology has become an essential part of our daily lives. However, as our dependence on digital technology grows, so does the threat of cybercrime.

Social media has played a crucial role in modern life. However, oversharing personal information online can expose users to identity theft, fraud, and privacy violations. Photos, phone numbers, addresses, and other personal details shared publicly can be misused by criminals.

Will You Be Next to Me?

... ♦ ...
Add a little sounds your name
My heart pumps twice.
My breath sinks,
And eyes blink.
Odd is happening.

A sting I adore,
Sweeter than I thought.
A pain that I love,
But this love, isn't pain.
Change is happening.

Can you stand a test?
To stay too long.
Long goes so,
Later, to belong?
Confusion is happening.

Sure, oh Lord!
I've known so...
These stars are to split
But can they come close?
Prayer is happening.

NO! Stands so,
The fate turns though.
But still I hope...
To collide once more.
Denial is happening.

Closed eyes know,
Sunken breaths talk.
My heart secretly shows..
To love you evermore.
Promise is happening.

On an eternity,
When stars collide,
And hearts alive,
Where we shall meet
Our souls find seat,
I'll be next to you.
Love is happening...

ASHES AND ECHOES

Ash on your lips, moon low and wide,
We chased a fire we couldn't hide.

Ocean whispers secrets only night can hold,
Every note a spark, every memory gold.

Hands tracing lines the dark couldn't keep,
Laughter like lightning, wild and deep.

We lived like a moment borrowed from time,
A fleeting eternity — reckless, sublime.

We lit it bright, knowing the light would fade,
Some loves burn fast, yet never trade.

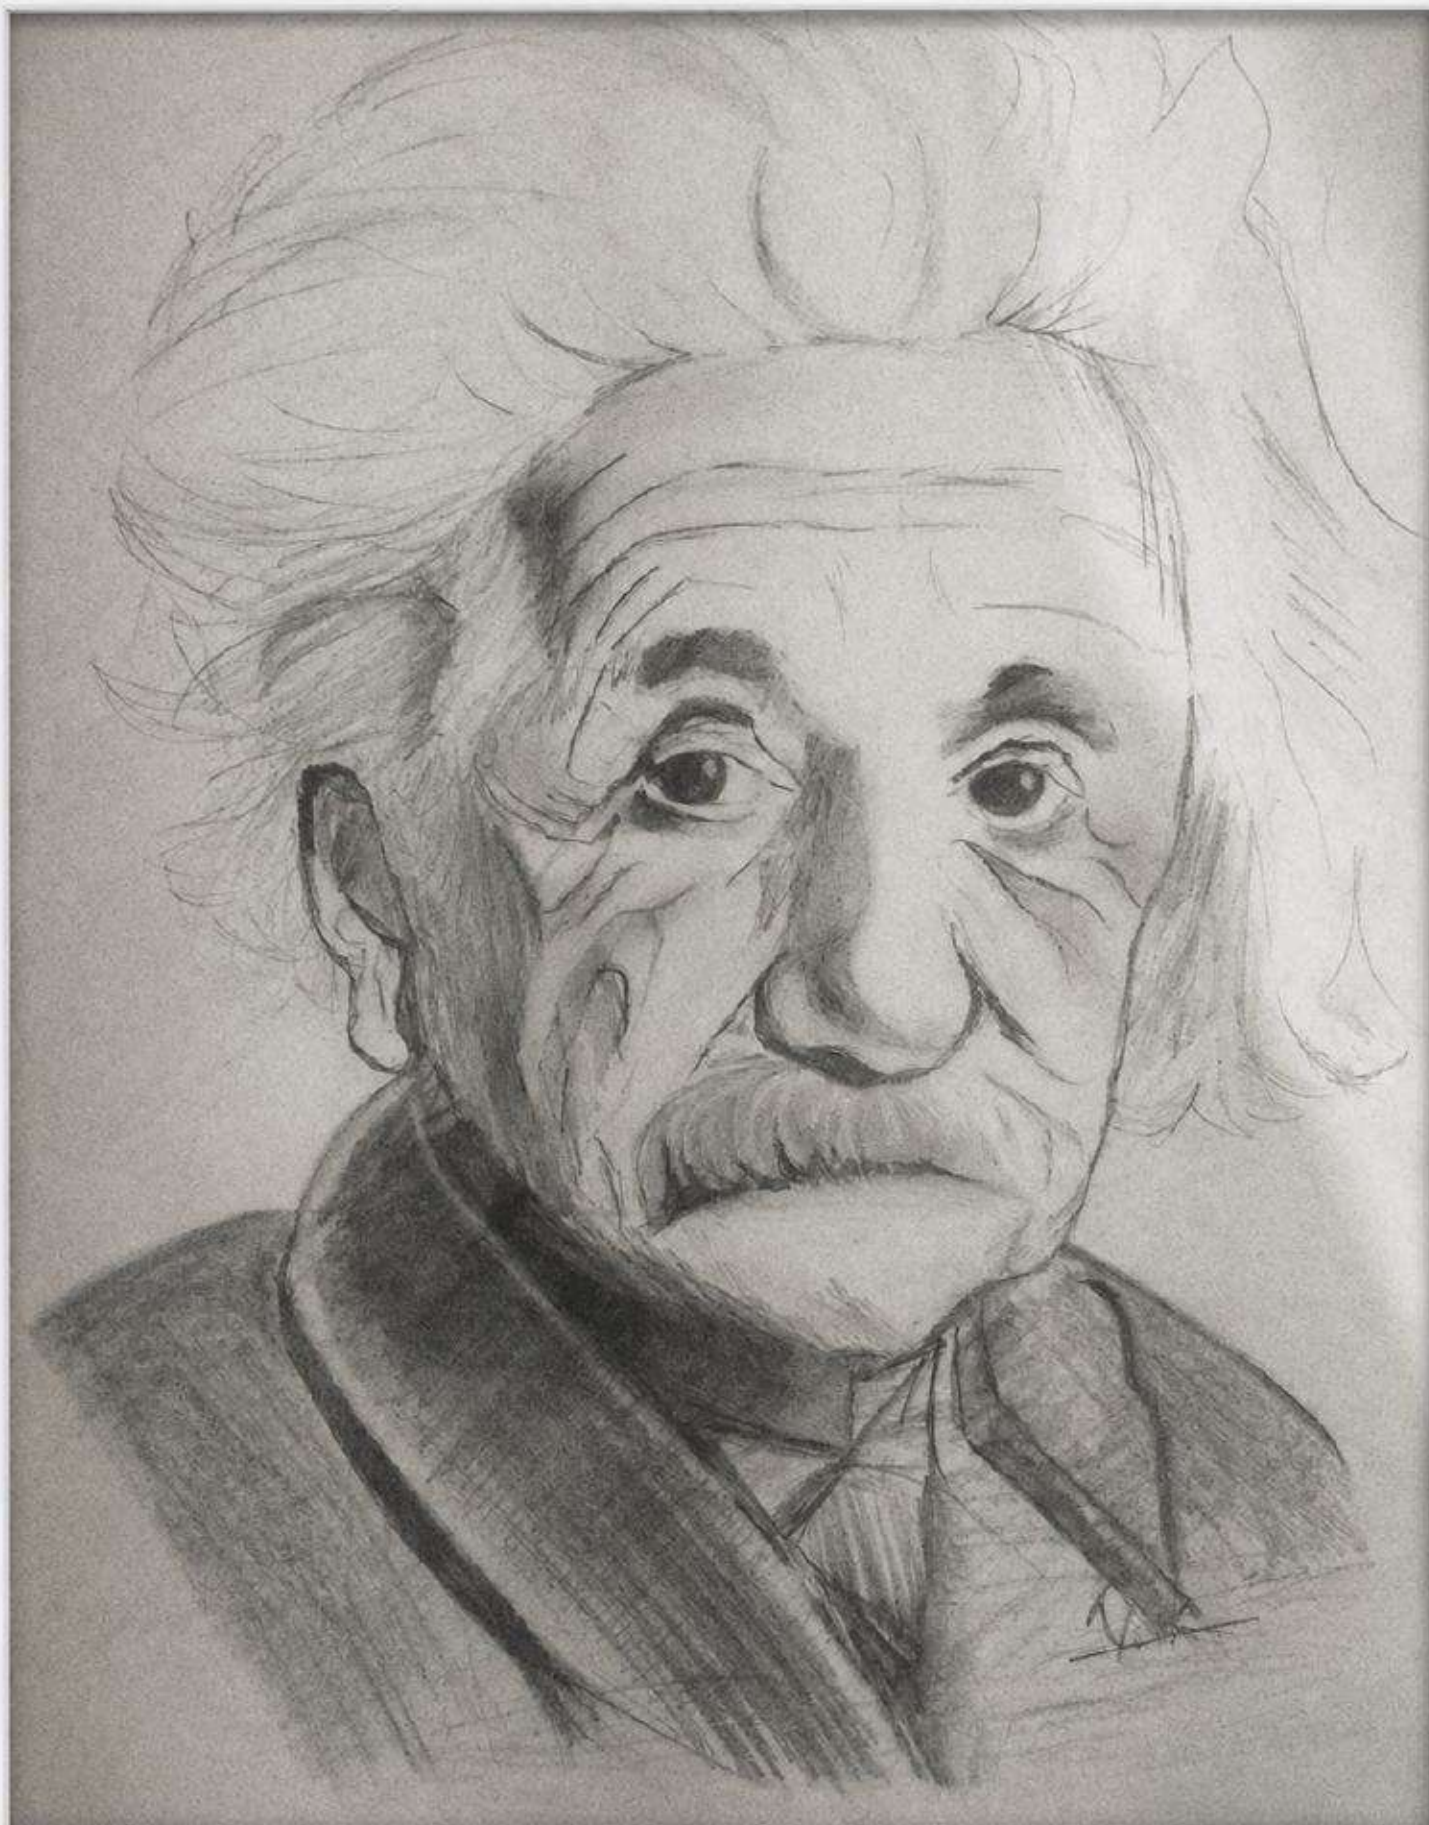

Moon above, shadows in our head,
We loved like embers — glowing long after red.

Songs in the dark, your voice against mine,
We burned, we lived, and we crossed every line.

Now distance hums a quieter tune,
But I still look up — and find the same moon.
